

About Ryokuen-toshi Residential Area

Ryokuen-toshi is located within the range of 35km from Tokyo and was developed around Ryokuen-toshi Station of Izumino Line (Futamatagawa-Shonandai) of Sagami Railway Co., Ltd. which runs through the western part of Yokohama city.

Its development started in 1974 based on the rezoning system of land and the sale of houses began in November, 1986. The original development plan was: total area 1.2million m², population 18,000, number of houses : detached houses, 2,834 ; condominiums 1761; others 143. It is a quiet residential area surrounded by Kodomo Shizen Koen (Natural Park for Children), Totsuka Country Club (golf course), etc.

According to the statistics of Feb. 2019, Ryokuen-toshi has the population of 13,872 and the total number of households of 5871. .

Urban plan road (Nakata-Sachigaoka Line) runs from south to north as trunk one in the area and main roads are arranged functionally with the Plaza in front of the Station at its center.

Electric cables were buried under the ground removing utility poles along the trunk road and semi-trunk ones.

In residential area, cul-de-sacs (blind alleys) or loop-turns (loop-shaped roads) were introduced in order to secure the safety, and view and safety was considerably taken into consideration for its planning.

“Ivy” was adopted as symbol of urban design of Ryokuen-toshi, imaging the growing process of stem and leaf, and used as sign on address-indicating-plates, in front of entrance of individual house, on station platforms, sidewalks, etc. in the form of picture tiles.

Basic theme of community planning at Ryokuen-toshi is “creative town planning in pursuit of human nature” and the goal was set in order to give a good impression of “Yokohama Style”, becoming to the name of Yokohama, i.e. neat and clean, and good sense.

To materialize this theme, the whole area was likened as a high-class membership resort hotel.

So, Ryokuen-toshi was developed under the idea of : the station is regarded as entrance and lobby of the hotel; pedestrians roads as guests passages; meeting places such as Ryokuen Club House etc. as lounges of the hotel; culture hall and sports facilities as resort amenities and commercial establishments as hotel arcades.

About Ryokuen-toshi Community Association (RCA)

Considering the whole area of Ryokuen as common property, Land Owners, Property Purchasers, and the Developer got united to act together for maintaining favorable environment and rich greenery of Ryokuen and established Ryokuen-toshi Community Association in April, 1987 as Japan's first community-developing organization propelled mainly by residents, separately from a customary self-governing residents' association. At its establishment, Homeowner's Association of residential areas in U.S.A. was taken into consideration as reference.
